Bibliographic Sources

This book was written based on the current edition of A Guide to the Project Management Body of Knowledge (PMBOK® Guide, 8th Edition) and the Agile Practice Guide, both published by the Project Management Institute. The author also acknowledges that some content draws on adaptations from books by well-known authors in PMP® certification prep, such as Rita Mulcahy, Michael Newell, Joseph Phillips, and Kim Heldman. These authors were instrumental both to the author's own PMP® exam success and to the creation of the first Spanish-language book on this subject. Note that PMI® did not participate in the creation of this book, and any conceptual errors are the sole responsibility of the author.

The Author

Paul Leido is a professional with extensive academic training, including a Master of Science in Project Analysis, Finance, and Investments from the University of York in England, an MBA in Project Management from Universidad Francisco de Vitoria in Spain, and an MBA in International Business from Universitat de Lleida in Spain. He holds PMP® and PMI-ACP® certifications from the Project Management Institute (PMI).

With experience in project evaluation for Towers Perrin in England, he now leads Pablolledo.com LLC, a company specializing in project management. His areas of expertise include financial evaluation and project risk management. Beyond his entrepreneurial role, he is a founding partner and director of four active companies.

Paul is an international instructor and the author of several books on project management. He has led workshops and consulting engagements for more than 50 international companies across 20 countries, training over 30,000 executives in project management for companies such as P&G, Visa, Telefónica, Repsol, and many others.

His contribution to the project management profession has been widely recognized: he has been a speaker at international conferences organized by PMI in cities such as Dubai, Vancouver, Dallas, Washington DC, and Singapore. He has also held important roles within PMI, including translating the PMBOK® Guide's 4th and 5th editions, leading PMI chapters in Argentina, and serving on the board of directors of PMI and the PMI Educational Foundation.

Paul has received the prestigious "Distinguished Contribution Award," an international honor for his outstanding contribution to the project management profession.
